

MR. SINGISER--US HISTORY--CHAPTER 7 AND 8 STUDY GUIDE--FALL 2008 SEMESTERCompletion

1. The American Civil Liberties Union advertised for a teacher who would be willing to be arrested for teaching _____.
2. The National _____ Act of 1924 made immigrant restriction a permanent policy.
3. American _____ did not share in the prosperity of the 1920s, earning less than one-third of the average income for workers in the rest of the economy.
4. By the mid-1920s, other automakers, notably General Motors and Chrysler, competed successfully with _____, the first carmaker to produce cars by using the assembly line.
5. Though hardly typical of American women, the _____, a young, unconventional woman, personified women's changing behavior in the 1920s.
6. Paul _____, a celebrated singer and actor, received wide acclaim in the title role of a 1924 New York production of Emperor Jones, a play by Eugene O'Neill.
7. Ford's assembly-line product was the _____, affectionately called the "Tin Lizzie" or "Flivver."
8. The journey of African Americans from the rural South to industrial cities in the North was known as the Great _____.
9. Louis Armstrong introduced an improvisational, early form of _____, a style of music influenced by Dixieland and ragtime.

True/False

- _____ 10. Several poets of this time, such as Amy Lowell, had an important impact on the literary culture.
- _____ 11. The Dawes Plan not only did little to ease Europe's economic problems, but it also increased the debt of Britain, France, and Germany to American banks and corporations.
- _____ 12. T.S. Eliot's fiction presented a new literary style characterized by direct, simple, and concise prose, as shown in his novel A Farewell to Arms.
- _____ 13. Charles R. Forbes, the head of the Veterans Bureau, sold scarce medical supplies from veterans' hospitals and kept the money for himself.
- _____ 14. At Andrew Mellon's urging, Congress dramatically reduced tax rates in keeping with the idea of supply-side economics.
- _____ 15. The Washington Conference angered Japan because it required the Japanese to maintain a smaller navy than either the United States or Great Britain.
- _____ 16. For the presidential election of 1924, the Democrats were deeply divided between their urban Eastern constituency and their rural following in the South and West, but they finally agreed on nominating John W. Davis.